3. Egneevaluering/Self assessment

Vurdering av undervisningsopplegget i forhold til mål og resultater (emneansvarlig)

Assessment of the teaching plan in relation to goals and results (course coordinator)

The teaching plan provided students with a variety of challenges and examples to relate back to key course concepts. The combination of active lectures and small seminars ensured conversations between students and staff. Lectures and seminars were coordinated, with constant communication between course coordinators and seminar leader. Having lectures in a seminar room worked well for the size of the course and the type of lecturing.

Communication regarding the course assignment should be made primarily by course coordinators. It should be made clear to students that material presented in the lectures (e.g. assignment instructions) is pre-established, whereas seminars allow for questions and for suggested work methods. Regarding readings, students were made aware before the course and during the first lecture that GEO 222 is reading-intensive and were made clear about the distinction between mandatory and suggested readings.
