The course was taught for the first time in Spring 2024. We had 29 master students, 11 of them were from Media and Interaction Design master program. The course was completed as planned.
Faglærers vurdering av:
<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Undervisnings- og vurderingsformer
We held six main lectures, each lasting three hours, in addition to an introductory session and a discussion session for peer feedback. The lectures worked very well, and we plan to retain the general format for future iterations. However, we might incorporate additional activities into some of the more theoretical lectures to make them more interactive. For assessment we had compulsory course activities throughout the course including compulsory course attendance (at least 80%), reflective essay, peer feedback and discussion of peer feedback. The assessment through course with the aforementioned activities worked quite well. We, the lecturers of the course (Gro, Hege, David, Per-Einer, Ali, and Michalis) will meet to discuss the students feedback and further improvement of the course for next year.

The modules cover topics related to various aspects of diversity and the essential and recommended literature were very informative and clear. We will consider revising the literature list to enhance the course and incorporate new developments in the field.
Rammevilkår:
<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Lokale og undervisningsutstyr
Some of the rooms for lectures were not ideal (rooms 005, 003), being too small for all the number of students we had. Upon feedback from students after the second session, and in coordination with the administrative staff (Sondre), we managed to find better rooms. Otherwise, we had all the equipment we needed for teaching.

- Faglærers oppsummering av studentene sine tilbakemelding fra studentevaluering

The students' evaluation is attached below. We had a good participation rate in course evaluation (more than 80% of students). Overall, the students found the lectures very useful and the topic very interesting and relevant. They were also happy about the general structure of the course. We had some responses to the open-ended questions that perhaps three hours lectures are a bit too much. We will introduce more activities to the lectures to address this issue and make it more interactive for next time. We had also some concerns about the space being too small in some lectures which was fixed after the second session of the course and we will keep it in mind for next time.

- Faglærers kommentarer til studentevalueringen
